

GrC338 Web Development & Content Mangement

GIT Lab

Complete the tutorial Learn Enough GIT to Be Dangerous (1–5) located at: https://www.learnenough.com/git-tutorial#code-global_config

Please note: When reading through the tutorial, enter the information after the $ into Terminal.

The information to the left of the $ will look different on your computer than the information in the tutorial.

Complete the answers to the questions below

1 Git help

What is the first command listed?

1.2 Initializing the repo

What is the name of the hidden directory used by the Git repository?

1.3 Our first commit

> Exercise step 5, use the -m option as previously entered (do not use Vim)

1.4 Viewing the diff

The example in the tutorial looks like this: > > > > > > > > > >

We can confirm that the change went through by running `git log`:

[website (master)]$ git log commit 03aff34ec4f9690228e057a4252bcca169a868b4
Author: Michael Hartl <michael@michaelhartl.com>
Date: Thu Dec 17 20:03:33 2015 -0800
```

Add content to index.html

```
commit 879392a6bd8dd505f21876869de99d73f40299cc

Initialize repository

What happens if you run `git commit -am "Add baz"`?

1.5 Adding an html tag

If atom does not work (by opening in a text editor),
Rt click on the file> Open with> Brackets

2.3 Adding a Read Me

#2. Commit your change with an appropriate message.
You don't have to run `git add`. Why not?

3.2 Ignoring files

Commit the `.gitignore` file to your repository. Hint: Running `git commit -am` isn't enough. Why not?

4.3 Pushing branches

#2. Delete the fix-trademark branch locally. Do you need to use the -D option, or is -d sufficient?

> But it should look like this:

grc-dvees:website dvees$ git log
